-Turkish Excitement.

ATHENS, Greece, April 13 What is a practical declaration of war is the advance over the frontier of 1500 "irregular" troops, bandits, so-called and called guerilias in the American war. The significant fact is however, that the fregular troops are acting, if not under the orders, at least with the knowledge and sanction of the government. Several short skirmishes have already taken place. Whether or not war has been de-clared, as the late Charles Francis Adams said to the English government, which was allowing the Confederates to build ships under the English flag to prey on northern ree: "Gentlemen, this is war.

or the news that show these regulars have crossed the frontier between Trihara and Jannina, and that a very fleres conflict has taken place. The porte has informed the ambassadors that, in presence of this fact, Turkey could no longer maintain her expectant and pacific attitude. The general situation has become very serious. Edham his forces neross the frontier.

A number of Greek statesmen are responsible for the present vigorous policy of that country. Foremost among them is Prime Minister M. Theodore Belyannis. He is 75 years of age, and is now serving his fourth term as premier. He holds the treasury portfolio. For many years he has been one of the foremost men in the affairs of Greece

LARISSA, Thessaly, April 13-The Crown LARISSA, the sary, April 13 - The Crown Prince Constantin, commander-in-chief of the Greek troops, says "I am fully prepared to make war when it becomes necessary. My troops are in excellent condition, and the arlike spirit prevails in the soul of every man under arms. If the Turkish army should make an attempt to cross the frontier and attack us. I should act promptly. The incursion into Turkish territory by rebel bands of armed Greeks was wholly unauthorized by me, and absolutely against my policy and my instructions from the king. Their attack upon the Moslems will by no ans be considered as an excuse to begin war, and I shall do my utmost to prevent a repetition of such a violation of the neutrality laws. The Turkish position captured by these rebels will not be occupied by the Greek army, nor will we aid the invaders in ATHENS, Greece, April 13-The news of the incursion into Tursish territory has been received here with great jubilation. The general belief is that nothing can now restrain the army, which is bound to follow across the frontier in a few days. One newspaper says that the die is now cust; that a successful beginning has been made; that it is all over with diplomacy, negotiations and identical notes or blockades, and that the oquent voice of the rifle has spoken at st. WASHINGTON, D. C., April 13, Daniel Woisey Voorhees, United States ex-senator from Indiana, has just died at his home in this city. Mr. Voorhees has been in poor this city. Mr. Voorhees has been in poor health for several years, and for at least two years post has taken little part in the proceedings in the Senate. He has been a constant sufferer from rheumatism of the head, and his friends, therefore, had come to expect that they might hear of his sudden death. At the time of his retirement from the Senate the "Tall Sycamore of the Wabash," as he was affectionately called by his devoted followers in the Hoosier state, was the ranking Democrat on the finance committee, and, by virtue of this position, the nominal leader, at least, of his party on the floor of the Senate on tariff and financial questions. financial questions.

Ex-Senator Voorhees was born Sept. 26, 1827, in Liberty township, Batler county, Ohio, and when in his infancy his parents removed to their pioneer home in the Wabash valley, Indiana. He graduated the woman went out and has not been seen since. The draft has come back from New York indorsed 'not known." While here the man undertook to purchase articles at various places, tendering in payment for them checks drawn by Albany people, but as far as learned he did not succeed in victimizing anyone, as they were refused. He has been heard of north of Rutiand.

He was appointed to the United States senate to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Oliver P. Morton and took his seat in 1877. He was, immediately after his inauguration in that body, made a member of the committee on finance. Soon after he entered the senate he addressed that body on the question of free coinage of silver, and favored the preservation of the greenback currency as full legal tender money. On this issue the Democrats carried Indiana by over 30,000 majority in the election of the members of the legislature, and in return this legislature voted him personal friends in Washington, of all classes and conditions. His free-handed generosity obliged, at 70 years of age, to prepare to support himself by delivering a lecture on the great men of his time. He was at work on this lecture when he died.

It was appropriate that he should die near the congressional library, for that is his monument, since it was he who, on the ins monument, since it was he was, on the 5th of May, 1880, with a speech in the Sen-ate, started the movement for its erection. Congress will provide for placing his bust in a prominent place in the library building. Senator Voorhees was regarded as one of the most eloquent and powerful advocates that ever addressed a jury. His first prominence before the country was acquired through his defence of young Cook was associated with the John Brown At the trial young Voorhees delivered an address which attracted much notice, and has since been published in every language of the civilized world.

The remains of ex-Senator Voorhees were scorted from Washington to his native state of Indiana. Before being taken to his Terra Haute home the body lay in state in the capitol building at Indianapolis. The honorary pallbearers were Senators Morrill, Turple. J. K. Jones, Wilson and Cullom, ex-Senator Butler, Judge Lawrence Weldon and Hon Richard J. Bright.

Mrs. Rita Lesca de Ruiz, widow of the murdered American, has been given a per-sonal audience by President McKinley and Secretary Sherman and her plea for help and immediate action in behalf of herself and her orphaned little ones will not be in vnin. The administration has interested itself in her behalf. She told the story of the ruthless murder by the Spanish of her imprisoned husband. The case has excited profound sympathy throughout the United States and an investigation is being made by Consul General Lee. Upon his report will lepend our government's action.

It is said that one of the candidates for the mayoralty of the city of Toledo, Ohio, S. M. Jones, is a remarkable man. Politically he is very much like Hazen S. Pingree, but has more of the spirit of Mazzini and of the Christian Socialists then the well-known Mayor of Detroit and Governor of Michigan. It is said in the New York Independent that he is one of the few men in the oil business who have eluded the Standard Oil Monopoly, and at the same time managed to make a good deal of money; in fact, by an invention which made him independent, he has been fortunate enough to set up a little monopoly of his own. In his factory the only rule for the guidance of his employes is the Golden Rule, which he has posted up, and which, moreover, he lives up to himself. He is accustomed to pay all his men more than the market rate of wages, and does all sorts of extra things for them, taking them on excursions on holidays and giving them social pleasures of various kinds. Once he was visited by the leaders of the local union in the trade pursued by his workers, and having his attention called to the fact that none of his men had joined the union, he at once subscribed for as many copies of the trades union paper as he had men, and had a copy handed to each one every week with his pay. Mr. Jones has been deeply affected by the writings of Ruskin and Mazzini and their American sympathizers, and is possessed with the idea that those who believe these dectrines and preachthem ought to do their best to practice them. In fact, he is a "Jangerous man in the best sense of the word," and if he receives the election some very interesting results may be ex. pected to follow.

There is no section of the agricultural portion of America where the farmers work harder than those of the South, maintains the New Orleans Picayune. The raising of 9,000,000 bales of cotton per annum is an argument in favor of this view.
